77th Annual American Composers Update

FROM OUR DIRECTOR

Roses to my fellow SAI members!

Each year, as annual updates finish arriving from our Composers Bureau members, I gain a sense of joy for the successes of these composers. There are countless stories both described and implied in these pages. As you read, you will discover dreams that have come to fruition, goals achieved, and recognition received. It is inspiring to see the growth of our fellow musicians, and I hope that you, too, will find refreshment in their accomplishments this year.

— Krista Vázquez-Connelly, DMA, Composers Bureau Director

Dr. Vázquez-Connelly is a composer whose work canvasses solo, chamber, orchestra, wind band, chorus, and electronic media. Aside from compositional work, she is the Instrumental Music Instructor at Central Community College in Columbus, Nebraska.

Vázquez-Connelly is a member of the Lincoln Alumnae and Patroness chapter in Lincoln, Nebraska, and has organized “She Sings” for the past four years, a women composers concert. This concert features both local professionals and students and is a benefit event for Lincoln Music Teachers Association’s Music Outreach Project, which provides low-cost music instruction to eligible students.

How Can You Support the Composers Bureau?

Current members are encouraged to share potential projects or article ideas with the Director at any time. In addition, our Composers Bureau webpage contains an alphabetical listing of bureau members and links to their websites. New this year is a searchable database where you can search by medium or composer location to find new music! Visit it at: www.sai-national.org/resources/composers-bureau.html

We welcome new composers to the Bureau throughout the year and are actively looking for qualified candidates to add to our listing. Potential members — your composition colleagues, local artists, professors, visiting musicians — must show a pattern of continued activity as a composer of concert music. In addition, prospective members must meet one of the following criteria:

- Publication by a recognized publisher
- Performance by professionals in a professional concert venue, or on national radio or television

Have a suggestion for a new Composers Bureau member? Submit their name for consideration here: forms.gle/cQ3uBR2KpxwnVV8e9
Candidates can also be submitted via email, together with their credentials and contact information, to Krista Vázquez-Connelly at SAIComposersBureau@gmail.com.

COVER COMPOSER

DIMITRI VOLKOV

Dmitri Volkov's work in music has been described as "interesting," which he considers better than the alternative. As an award-winning composer, Dmitri aims to develop and apply experimental techniques, bringing forward the boundaries of music. He is also an accomplished violinist and multi-instrumentalist. Besides music, Dmitri is active in computer science, and has presented at conferences, contributed to textbooks, and produced successful commercial apps and plugins.

Dmitri's music composition awards include: NYC Contemporary Music Symposium finalist; RIOCC Organ Composition Competition Young Artist Division 1st Prize; and ASCAP Morton Gould Young Composer Competition finalist. His pieces have been performed by members of major U.S. orchestras (including the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, Dallas Symphony Orchestra, and Baltimore Symphony Orchestra), and chamber groups including the Neave Trio. His computer music work has been presented at the International Symposium for Quantum Computer Music, the Tui St. George Tucker Symposium, and the MOXsonic, SPLICE, and REF Resilience music festivals. Dmitri is a co-author of the first chapter of Advances in Quantum Computer Music, published by World Scientific. He develops Pivotuner, an audio plugin enabling adaptive pure intonation for virtual instruments, and the practice tool 2in1 Drone Metronome, alongside other apps and plugins.

Dmitri holds degrees in music composition and computer science, with honors and high distinction, from the Jacobs School of Music and Luddy School of Informatics, Computing, and Engineering at Indiana University. He has also studied at the Institute for Research and Coordination in Acoustics and Music (IRCAM) in Paris. Please visit dmitrivolkov.com for recordings and additional information.

I was reelected for the sixth time to the Board of Directors of ASCAP in 2025, serving as its sole Symphonic and Concert writer member since 2014, and am also an officer on the Board of the ASCAP Foundation. I continue to serve on the boards of the Aaron Copland Fund for Music and the Music Publishers Association of the United States, the latter of which I represent my company, Activist Music LLC. I regularly speak on pod- and webcasts about music, copyright, technology, and the music business, and over the past year have been composer-in-residence at several universities and have contributed to two upcoming books on music careers and the music business. Some 2025 appearances include being David Wertz's guest on his podcast "Breaking the Baton" in May, giving a webinar for music retailer J.W. Pepper on the business of music in September, and presenting a similar webinar for the music students of Louisiana State University in October. The music industry has changed dramatically, and there is never a lack of compelling topics to discuss!

77th Annual American Composers Update

For decades, the Winter edition of PAN PIPES has shared stories of composers, both contemporary and historical, alongside the Composers Bureau update. Below is a sample of articles from the Winter 2026 issue, available to members and subscribers.

SAI National Convention Wind Ensemble

By Dr. Pam Klena

The National Convention Wind Ensemble concert was all about celebrating inclusivity in the music we play. For a long time, wind band music has been shaped mostly by white male composers, and their work is still an invaluable part of what we do, serving as a necessary foundation for the growth of wind band. But it's time to go further—by finding, performing, and commissioning works by historically-excluded composers, we make sure every musician can see themselves in the music. Every culture, voice, and expertise adds depth to the world of the SAI National Convention. Of Ensemble piece more that show creative genius in the music. Here, Convention more about this gateway genre of discovering new music and sharing it with others. I, personally, am so passionate about this and happy to share new composers I've found

Kalos Eidos by Carol Brittin Chambers
Kalos Eidos comes from the Greek words for "beautiful form," and it's also where we get the word "kaleidoscope." Just like turning a kaleidoscope, the music is always shifting—sometimes bright and bold, other times smooth and lyrical. It's colorful, surprising, and always changing.

Visiting Two Bel Canto Museums in Lombardy

MORE COMPOSER DISCOVERIES: Samuel Adler's The Binding (1967)

By Hollis Thoms

In Samuel Adler's autobiography Building Bridges with Music: Stories from a Composer's Life (Pendragon Press 2017), we learn from a cable about fifty feet off the ground. As they gathered the scores in the balcony, they heard SS men talking and laughing below. Adler says the dust made him sneeze, and one of the officers commanded a man to go upstairs on sight. Suddenly, to the floor below, everyone to go up the book all the scores through the secret

A vignette
Adler grew up in Nazi Germany, poignantly relating in his autobiography how he and his father, Hugo Chaim Adler—a well-known Jewish cantor and liturgical composer—saved liturgical music. Much of it would have been destroyed by the Nazis, as they burned and bombed most of the Jewish synagogues. His father entered a destroyed synagogue through a secret passage to gather the music scores. The building had been bombed, and a first explosion blew out the entire front wall. A second explosion destroyed the balcony, and blew the organ over the side so that it hung

In 1968, Adler decided to write his own The Binding, based on some of his father's text. His autobiography notes that the middle part of the oratorio quotes his father's text exactly. Both Abraham and

My Journey to Making a CD of One-Handed Piano Works by Women Composers

By Adrienne Wiley

Prior to my second sabbatical, I was heavily invested in playing piano music with one hand: the left hand. This became a specialty for me when I joined my right hand during my DMA Program preparing for a recital. My teacher was so helpful to point me toward left-handed piano music so I could complete my DMA lecture recital. I completed the recital successfully.

Post-DMA, I continued to play pieces for left hand alone. Eventually I became tired of the usual and well-known one-handed pieces: the Brahms's Chaconne, the Scriabin Nocturne, and so forth. I pondered: what if there were women composers writing in this genre? Yes! This is when I started researching piano music for one hand written by women composers. My research prior to 2011 (next sabbatical) found over one hundred piano works written for the left or right hand alone by women composers. These pieces were a combination of educational music, historical music (music that was printed/published pre-20th century), and concert-level article. During this time, I had a sense that I would record another CD featuring little-known works by women composers.

Post-sabbatical and several years later, I realized that making a CD of this genre would be highly unique. I applied for internal funding from my university and received the Kessler's Evocation. These were of the easiest pieces to obtain mechanical rights. Once the recordings were completed, I worked with Centaur to obtain the mechanical licenses of the remaining pieces. While the first four were easy, and the composers either living or the publishing house still active in their music archiving, it proved to be a more complicated issue for the other works. The Australian Music Centre would not grant any mechanical licenses. Many of the remaining pieces were either out of print or, because of the time of the original publication—for example, Minnie Reese (mid-1800s)—the publishing firm closed down and there was no transfer of music to another firm. I found that some publishing firms were either absorbed into others or permanently closed. It was hard to track down where these publications went.
